Can BMW Wi-Fi hotspot be misused?

2020/12/21

Hello Bam! That portable Wi-Fi hotspot is a really convenient device and we will explain you why. It is a small device that contains 4G SIM card and shares that Internet connection via Wi-Fi. It seems that it also supports 3G. What's the convenience? Everyone in your car will be able to surf the net on the ride without and problems. Also that device will surely have better reception than smartphones. But we at Jammer-Store may state that this device may be pretty dangerous if misused. First of all you should know that a wireless network that your hotspot creates is working thanks to RF waves and that networks stretch far beyond your car limits, in other words the network can be accessible from outside the car. As long as Wi-Fi has security issues - you may be sure that somebody may try to hack it and by doing that the evildoer will gain access to all mobile devices connected to the network. The second point here is that that it may serve as the additional distractive factor and that is really bad if you are driving. You should remember that using wireless gadgets while driving is a really bad idea, because more than 60% of car accidents are caused by that. So the answer to your question is BMW hotspot is not really safe on the road. It may cause not only a personal data leak but even a car accident too. Try to avoid it and if it is impossible simply jam the Wi-Fi connection. It can be done with a simple Wi-Fi signal blocker. Thanks for your question, I hope I've managed to help!
